AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

- Sharing Second Wave's practice of working with young people, the police and the wider community
- Developing methods of working across boundaries
- Challenging stereotypes and building trust in community action
- Promoting the active engagement of young people in civil society, democracy and decision-making
- Strengthening a sense of belonging for marginalised groups in community settings

'Working with Second Wave has not only fostered a more open, transparent and accountable approach to addressing crime and community safety issues, but has significantly developed officers' communication skills & their ability to relate to young people. This has engendered trust in young people.'

SUPERINTENDENT TERRY O'CONNOR (METROPOLITAN POLICE SERVICE)

In 2007 Second Wave was awarded a Commendation from the Metropolitan Police Service for the excellence of its partnership work with TSG4 (Territorial Support Group).
